

Interest paid on a loan taken out to redeem preference shares – Supreme Court decision summary

Part 04-06-20

This document should be read in conjunction with section 81 of the Taxes Consolidation Act 1997.

Document last reviewed May 2023

Executive summary

This manual contains an extract from Tax Briefing issue 44 which outlines the Supreme Court decision in a case of Sean MacAonghusa (Inspector of Taxes) v Ringmahon Company. The issue was whether a payment of interest was laid out wholly and exclusively for the purposes of a company's trade.

Extract from Tax Briefing Issue 44 (June 2001)

Case:	Sean MacAonghusa (Inspector of Taxes) v Ringmahon Company.
Point at Issue:	Whether a payment of interest was laid out wholly and exclusively for the purposes of a company's trade.
Decision made by:	The Supreme Court
Decision Date:	29 May 2001
Relevant Legislation:	Section 61(a) Income Tax Act 1967 (Section 81(2)(a) Taxes Consolidation Act 1997).

Summary of Supreme court decision

The Supreme Court found unanimously that interest paid on a loan taken out to redeem preference shares was laid out wholly and exclusively for the purposes of the company's trade. Mr. Justice Geoghegan found considerable support in the Canadian case of Trans Prairie Pipelines Limited v Minister of National Revenue 70 DTC 6351 for the views he had taken.

This summary is for reference only and readers are recommended to read the full text of the judgments.